running a recent version of Windows (7, 8, 8.1, and 10 are supported), you shouldn't have problems with the SATA driver. (In fact, the Intel SSDs that come with most recent Windows machines are pretty good at managing SATA-only devices, so even the "advanced" Intel SSDs can be user-updateable.) I just checked your "firmware" number on your motherboard, and it seems to be wrong, as Intel has stopped updating the firmware images on their website. So, at a guess, you might want to: update the BIOS to the latest version re
