Wake up. You are at the beginning of a lousy day. You don't remember what has happened last night and you certainly don't know what is going on around you. Evil aliens have invaded your house and are at your doors. You will have to spend the rest of the day being a super hero, protecting your house from aliens and keeping them away from important parts of your yard. This game is easy to pick up and play with full control. You don't need to be a hero to defend your house from aliens, but now you do. Nothing is going to stop them from stealing important things that are in your yard. This includes your lawn mower, your barbecue, your trampoline, your pool table, your toys, your sewing machine, your BBQ grill and many other things that you may or may not have noticed in your backyard. A simple yet addictive game, that will take you away from your boring life for a few moments. Have fun playing.

NSW Premier Gladys Berejiklian says she's not worried about her colleagues getting a pay rise at this year's budget. "I don't want to speak specifically about anybody in particular but there will be some. I'm not sure how many but there will be some," Ms Berejiklian told ABC's AM program. "I think that's something that is fair for people to expect in that in a tough environment, at the end of the day, people are going to get some pay rises," she said. "I think the expectation is people will get a pay rise, yes." Ms Berejiklian added that she thought there were "fair" reasons why people were getting pay rises. "People are moving up the ranks, people are choosing the right jobs. I think people are also choosing to move away from government and return to the private sector," she said. The budget is also due to introduce new Indigenous services and boost social services, with Ms Berejiklian to declare the budget later today. She said the budget would also create more opportunities for "genuine self-reliant" Indigenous people. Budgets are due to be handed down on Tuesday this week.

A technique for intraoperative 3-D angiographic imaging based on the real time operation of a Philips x-ray-computer system is described. Intraoperative 3-D intraoperative angiography (3-D IA) was performed in four patients with aneurysms of the internal carotid artery (ICA). Operative images were registered with conventional angiography. Three-dimensional orthogonal reconstruction and rotation of the skull were used to display the data in an intraoperative three-dimensional workstation. Three-dimensional IA provided good intraoperative visualization of the vascular anatomy, and allowed the surgeons to plan and perform aneurysm surgery with precision. This technique was useful in two cases of ICA aneurysms. In another patient, the 3-D IA was used to visualize an aneurysm of the internal carotid artery in the petrous segment. In this case, a special clip was designed for microvascular dissection on the petrous ICA. Intraoperative 3-D IA is beneficial to the neurosurgeons for planning aneurysm surgery. The Dutch are one of Europe's most multiethnic and multicultural societies.
Despite the diversity of their origins--the few immigrants to the country mostly settled near the northwestern limited racial mixing. The genetic consequences of past isolation and the large influence of a strong founder effect together with natural drift have led to the
